THEATRE PEOPLE GOING TO COURT

Lyric Promoters Will Test Ordinance Passed to Deny License.

Application will shortly be made to court by Smith, Moncre & Gordon, counsel for Henry Wallerstein and other promoters of the Lyric Theatre, at Eighth and Grace Streets, to test the constitutionality of the recent action of the Council in adopting an ordinance forbidding the licensing of any theatre within a specified distance of a church. H. M. Smith, Jr., of counsel for Mr. Wallerstein, said yesterday that the papers were being prepared for test proceedings, but that it had not been determined in what court nor in what manner the proceedings would be taken. Assistant City Attorney George Wayne Anderson said that he had not been informed of any steps to test the validity of the act.

Mr. Wallerstein, owner of the lot at the southeast corner of Eighth and Grace Streets, has secured a permit to erect a theatre of the first class, according to plans filed in the office of the Building Inspector, and has entered into a lease for a term of years with J. A. Wells and others, owners of the lot. St. Paul's Episcopal and St. Peter's Catholic Churches, located on the same block, the Council passed an ordinance designed to prohibit the issuance of a license to the proposed theatre, even if erected.

Civil Law Is Valid.

The ordinance is a form of the police power which is new to Virginia practice, though it is said similar laws have been upheld in other States, and a test in the courts will be awaited with interest. Its validity is upheld in an opinion by Assistant City Attorney Anderson, and Attorney Eugene Hinton, Jr., and B. Brand, Welford, who represented the churches, have expressed the opinion that it will stand. Opinion is divided, however, as to its constitutionality, and Mr. Smith said yesterday that his clients would take prompt action to secure a rehearing on the matter from the highest court.

There seems to be some doubt as to the method of procedure in making out a test case, which all parties agree should be made as soon as possible. The ordinance prohibits the issuance of a license to a theatre located within a specified distance from a church. The promoters would hardly go ahead with the erection of a building the use of which the courts may prevent them from exercising. Yet it has been held that application for a mandamus to compel the issuance of a license would hardly be in order, if the theatre has been erected and prepared for occupancy in the event that the license were granted.

Meanwhile work is progressing in clearing the site of old buildings, but the promoters will not hurry forward the erection of a new theatre until the courts have determined their right to operate it when completed.

MR. SADDLER ROBBED

Two Rings, One a Diamond, and Bag of Money Stolen.

William H. Sadler, of 327 East Franklin Street, reported to the Detective Department yesterday that his home had been entered some time yesterday morning and robbed. He said that a diamond and another ring were missing and a bag containing money was also stolen. The thief dropped the bag, and it was found later in the rear of the hallway, through which the sneak made his flight.

ARGUMENT HEARD BY ARBITRATORS

Experts Soon to Give Report on Joint Use of Local Railway Lines.

Argument on the arbitration between the Richmond and Henrico Railway Company and the Virginia Railway and Power Company over the joint use of certain tracks was completed yesterday and the three arbitrators left for Philadelphia, carrying with them a mass of papers embracing maps of the two systems, franchise contracts and transcript of evidence. The hearing was held at the Jefferson Hotel, Henry W. Anderson and A. B. Guigon appearing for the Virginia Railway and Power Company, and Samuel L. Kelley for the Richmond and Henrico Company.

Attorneys expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the interest and attention shown by the arbitrators who are all men of large experience, connected with the practical operation of street car lines, and to whom it is believed the problem will prove simple of solution. The main questions at issue are the amounts per car to be paid by the Richmond and Henrico Company for use of the old company's tracks on Broad Street from Fifth to Eleventh, on Main Street from Twenty-first to Twenty-fourth, and on the Fulton loop, and also the amount to be paid for use of current where such tracks are used jointly.

There are also points as to the right of way of the cars of various lines, and other technical problems of operation. The belief was expressed that the report of the arbitrators would be unanimous, as while one was selected by each company, and the third by these two, none showed any disposition to be partisan, but to arrive at a fair and equitable settlement of the situation presented by the traction problem in Richmond. The arbitrators are W. W. Cole, a traction expert, of Philadelphia, selected by the Richmond and Henrico Railway Company; H. W. Fuller, general manager of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of Washington, selected by the Virginia Railway and Power Company, and Ellis Danforth, general manager of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, selected by the other two as third arbitrator. All who attended the hearing expressed their appreciation of the grasp shown by the arbitrators of the practical problems involved in the intimate knowledge of the principles of street railway operation. A decision is expected in a few days.

The charges against Annie Miller, twenty years old, charged with the larceny of jewelry from Miss Mary Winston and from H. F. Sweet, were indefinitely continued. W. W. KILLED HIMSELF ON FRONT STEPS

Oscar Robb Takes Poison After Wishing His Family "Good Luck" in Note.

WAS HURT BY PROSPERITY

Dr. Tune Worked Hard to Save Patient, but Aid Was Unavailing.

Pleading that he could not stand prosperity, Oscar Robb, twenty-two years old, committed suicide at 10:30 o'clock last night on the front steps of his boarding house, at 614 North Seventh Street, by swallowing a vial of carbolic acid. When members of his family heard his groans and found him, with his head on the floor of the porch and his feet hanging down the steps, he was then in an almost dying condition.

They summoned the city ambulance, and Dr. Tune rushed to the house. Robb was nearly unconscious, and was still on the porch. He was carried inside to the hall, where they laid him down on a sofa. The physician used every means known to resuscitate the young man, but he had swallowed too much of the poison, and it was too late. He died within a few minutes.

Robb boarded at the house with his father and brother, who are the only ones to survive him. His father could not explain any reason which could cause young Robb to end his life, except that he may have fallen heavily into debt.

Bought Poison Himself.

Robb was single, and was employed as clerk in a Broad Street clothing store. His suicide was evidently premeditated. He went out for a short time and it was supposed that he then bought the fatal drug. When he returned, he asked for paper and pencil, saying that he wanted to write a note. But none could be found just then, and he went up to his room. There he found pen and ink, and the following note was found later on his father's dresser:

"Dear Father and All,—This is the paper which wrapped the bottle with which I end my life. Good luck to all, and tell them good-bye for me."
(Signed), OSCAR.

On the outside of the wrapping paper on which the note was written were found the explaining words, "I cannot stand prosperity." Beyond this none of the family could give a reason why he should have wished to die. He was a young man of presumably good habits, and had steady employment.

Coroner Taylor viewed the remains, but decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Prisoners Isolated.

No Evidence Yet That Otis Johnson Has Smallpox.

There were several prisoners in the smallpox situation at the Henrico county jail yesterday. Otis Johnson, a negro prisoner, is isolated as a suspect, but the physician in attendance has not concluded that his case is not genuine smallpox, but of some other, non-contagious eruption. Johnson will be kept to himself for a few days longer, however, as a matter of precaution. The city health authorities are co-operating with Jailor Garrett.

The last patient at the City Smallpox Hospital in Henrico county will probably be discharged today, and the suspect at the Henrico jail turns out to be a false alarm, the city will have a clean bill of health.

Practically all the cases found here this year have been imported from North Carolina.

WILL GO TO ATLANTA

Thirty Members of Howitzers Decide to Accept Invitation.

Consideration of the repeated invitation to attend the "Peace Monument" unveiling exercises in Atlanta in October now claims a good deal of the attention of the local Howitzers. The instruction this evening will be the attendance of many members of the battery, some thirty signified their desire and willingness to accept the invitation.

A social session in lieu of drill followed last night's meeting in honor of the Fourth of July. The refreshments consisted of a fine billion and a half of beer, dished out by Surgeon F. K. T. Warrick.

CARD RECEIVER USED AS WEAPON

Family Needed It in Fight, So Invited Guests Didn't Even See Its Dents.

After they had had a free-for-all fight, William and Nannie Hilton, husband and spouse, and John Alston, a friend of the family, all colored, were arrested yesterday afternoon and lodged in the Second Station. When officers reached the Hilton residence on an emergency call, they found Nannie covered with blood and showing very evident signs of having been through the thick of some fray. Hilton also looked bad, with cuts on his body and both eyes closed. Both were taken to the station, where Hilton was immediately locked up. Then John and Alston were locked up on a charge of feloniously assaulting Hilton.

William said that they had assaulted him with a card receiver. It seems that some fight was on for the day, and guests from far and near had been invited. Before they arrived both Hiltons and their friend had been put hors d' combat, and the card receiver was so badly dented that it could not have been put into commission.

NO VERDICT GIVEN ON SHAM BATTLE

Red and Blue Army Each Confident Victory Perched on Its Banner.

ENCAMPMENT SUCCESSFUL

First Regiment Spends Fourth in Hard Work Near Forest Hill.

Was Richmond in the grasp of an advancing army of soldiers with bloodied banners in their hats at the close of the sham battle near Forest Hill Park yesterday morning? Or were the invaders safely held in check by the forces of Blue? Nobody knows except Major C. Gray Bossieux, the umpire, and he won't tell.

Major L. T. Price, the gallant defender of the city, and Captain Charles M. Wallace, who headed the attacking forces, each think individually that the enemy was utterly routed, and that he would have been hailed as victor were the conflict in earnest. Unwilling to draw invidious distinctions, and perhaps having in mind the fate of baseball umpires, who have to render decisions, Major Bossieux took refuge behind his privilege and declined to judge.

Everybody Killed.

Suffice it to say that each and every man in both armies was constructively killed several times over, while the only thing that prevented most of the men from being taken prisoners was that each command, being already the prisoner of the other, had not enough men left to take charge of the captives.

It seemed to the tired First Regiment men that they had hardly crawled within their shelter tents at Camp William Yester when reveille was sounded yesterday morning. The night had been spent peacefully, and only one or two minor changes were brought up, which were atoned for by chopping wood, while the bugler kept time with the historic call, "Tear the woodpile down."

There were no kicks on the quality or quantity of the breakfast served by Battalion Quartermaster Levering. The men were hungry and ate eagerly.

Bloody Battle Waged.

At 5 o'clock the Reds and Blues separated. Companies C and F, constituting the attacking force, under Captain Wallace, advanced toward the Blues. The latter did some tremendous fighting when the scene was reached, and the advance parties, reserves and various other details of real war were on the job. Blank cartridges innumerable were discharged, until the umpire called the deal off.

The battalion drill in the afternoon was dispensed with because of the heat. At 3 o'clock the return to the camp, having been made, the men were previously taken down.

A good many members of the First Regiment Association, some of them war veterans, visited the camp during the day and broke bread as the guests of the battalion. Many visitors to the park were attracted to the camp, which was conducted according to the strictest military rules.

Still Alarm of Fire.

A still alarm of fire was turned in yesterday morning at 11:13 o'clock from 204 North Thirty-second Street, where the smoke seemed to prefer the chimney. The Fire Department reported that no damage had been done.

Married in Washington.

A marriage license was issued in Washington yesterday to John W. Arnold and Jimmie C. Hatch, both of Richmond.

"PRINCESS HASN'T LEG TO STAND ON"

But Chaloner Keeps to Promise Made in "Joy of Getting Rid of Her."

PAYS ALLOWANCE AS HE SAID

Denies Report Published in New York as Wholly Unfounded.

Recent action taken by Princess Pierre Troubetzkoy in regard to possible divorce from the estate of her former husband, John Armstrong Chaloner, of Virginia, has relieved his conscience from any burden it might have in revoking his implied wish to increase her allowance, made at about the time of the granting of the divorce. A statement to this effect was made by Mr. Chaloner at the Westmoreland Club last night.

This wish to add to the allowance of $3,500 a year, provided his business affairs prospered, was made, says Mr. Chaloner, "in the great rush of joy and gratitude at getting rid of Princess Troubetzkoy—in the first great expansive movement of my heart—so great, so expansive, so profound that actually my hand followed my heart and dove into the depths of my pocket and brought across a $3,500 proposition, out of whole cloth, free from alimony, free from dowry, free as air, to pay at least said amount to Princess Troubetzkoy for life, and even to increase said expansive, joyful, joyous, thank-offering, munificent, Providence, striking from my heels the fetters of a marriage bond with Princess Troubetzkoy."

Incorrect Report.

This statement from Mr. Chaloner is prompted by a story in a New York paper to the effect that the princess had been forced to forego her desired trip to Italy this summer with her husband, because Mr. Chaloner refused to come forward with the usual $3,500 allowance which he was willing to pay her for the summer.

His reason for this, it was stated in the paper, was that at the eleventh hour, as the court was waiting to grant her prayer for this sum, she put up a claim against Mr. Chaloner's estate for divorce.

Mr. Chaloner denies there is any truth in the story. He is informed that the princess had drawn her last quarter's allowance of $500, from what her former husband calls his "charity fund," and sailed for Europe a couple of weeks ago.

When the court granted Princess Troubetzkoy's application for the allowance, being informed that Mr. Chaloner had made no protest, she presented a statement that while she was Mr. Chaloner's wife, he had borrowed $25,000 of her literary earnings, and had never repaid her. She then made a claim for right of dower in his property. At that time Mr. Chaloner stated that in future he would oppose further payment of the $3,500 allowance, which she abandoned her claim on dower rights. Since that time, said Mr. Chaloner last night, he has examined the law of all the States in which he has property holdings, and is satisfied that in none of them can she substantiate her contention, declaring that "she hasn't a leg to stand on." Therefore, he says, "Princess Troubetzkoy is at liberty to repeat said false statement as often as she chooses and still draw her $3,500 allowance annually from my charity fund." However, he adds, in making her "practical stroke" at his property, she has done him the good turn of relieving his conscience from a former wish to increase this sum "granted success in the future of his business affairs."

SHOT IN THE NECK

Boy Injured While on Holiday Trip Down James River.

Robinson Nowland, a small colored boy, living at 113 South Jefferson Street, was shot in the neck while on a fishing trip down the river yesterday afternoon, but didn't know he had been shot. He told Dr. Tarter, of the city ambulance, who attended him, that he felt a sudden pain in his neck, but didn't know what it was. He walked home, and was treated there. The wound is regarded as dangerous, but it is thought the boy will recover.

Bigger Hands and Better Lights in Tower Will Help Way-faring Man.

Representatives of the E. Howard Clock Company, of Boston and New York, began yesterday to overhaul the clock system in the City Hall under the supervision of Building Inspector Beck for the first time since the big building was opened in February, 1894. The tower clock and thirty-seven subsidiary clocks, which run from the master clock by electric wires, were installed by the Howard company when the building was erected, and minor repairs have since been made.

Work began yesterday in thoroughly overhauling the mechanism of each of the subsidiary clocks. Next week the big tower clock will be stopped for two or three days while the machinery is gone over and new brass parts installed for some that show wear. New heavy-faced hands, three feet in length, are to be placed in the main clock, the dial of which is six feet six inches in diameter. The present light hands can only be seen by clear eyes from Seventh and Broad Streets, but it is believed that when the new hands are in place and powerful tungsten lamps may be readily told far up town.

The electric lighting mechanism is also to be changed and placed in an automatic clock-work basis, so that the lights will come on an extinguish themselves at fixed hours. There has been complaint in the past that those charged with lighting the clock faces have sometimes delayed until after dark to the inconvenience of the public, which depends on the City Hall for exact time.

Deducting fixed charges and taxes, the surplus is left at $2,957,537.18, a decrease of $2,332,085.94, or 49 per cent.

Norfolk and Western Report.

Norfolk and Western net operating revenues show a similar decrease for the first twelve months of the fiscal year. The total business has increased slightly, but the expenses have increased much more rapidly. The total operating revenues for May, according to a statement issued yesterday by Comptroller Joseph W. Cox, were $2,561,216, a decrease of $101,443, or 4 per cent. Total operating expenses amounted to $1,858,231.12, or 13 per cent. Deducting fixed charges and taxes, the surplus is left at $2,957,537.18, a decrease of $2,332,085.94, or 49 per cent.

For the first eleven months of the fiscal year total operating revenues were $25,651,912, an increase of $599,944, or 2 per cent. Allowing for other income and deducting fixed charges and taxes, the surplus for the first eleven months is shown to have been $2,957,537.18, a decrease of $1,079,814, or 36 per cent.

Kept Close to Water.

For about three miles of the twenty-two traversed the triad was in the air a few feet above the water, for fifteen miles it skimmed the surface, and on the last four miles the triad's position are through the water, plowing deeply.

The triad is the first to be built for the government. It and another were contracted for from Glenn H. Curtiss, to be delivered on July 1. While they have not as yet formally been accepted by the government, they are pronounced as perfectly satisfactory.

A city-horsepower engine was used on Monday, but as it is not powerful enough to raise the triad far enough from the water with two passengers, Mr. Curtiss has made it a seventy-horsepower machine. It has both wheels and pontoons, so that it may alight either on land or water.

Made Terrible Speed.

After landing Captain Chambers at Penn Yan, Lieutenant Elyson ran the machine at a terrific rate across the lake on the water. His speed was estimated at forty-five miles an hour, and it seemed as though he would strike the opposite shore. Suddenly he rose and circled about.

People in hundreds of small boats were waiting for a sight of the strange air and water craft, and large crowds lined the shores. The triad appeared in view from around a point, it looked exactly the ins called a darling needle. It sped past the fastest motor boats like a flash, sending out big rollers of spray. In the afternoon, Captain Chambers stepped on the triad without wetting the soles of his shoes.

ELLYSON PILOTS NEW AIR MACHINE

He Will Be First Instructor. Triad, Handled at Will, Makes Great Speed.

In a flying machine called a triad, which traverses air and water with equal facility, Lieutenant Theodore G. Elyson, Jr., a Richmond man, who heads the aviators of the United States Navy, on Monday made a remarkable flight. Carrying a passenger, Lieutenant Elyson guided the triad for fourteen miles in twenty minutes, running for the most part through the water.

The passenger was Captain W. L. Chambers, also of the Navy, who had been at the Glenn Curtiss aerodrome at Hammondsport, N. Y., for a day or two. Captain Chambers wished to catch a night train from Penn Yan for Washington, and Lieutenant Elyson rushed in to the station.

It is now announced that about July 15 the navy will open a regular training school for government aviators at Annapolis, and that Lieutenant Elyson will be the first instructor. Probably there will be a dozen pupils to begin with.

Native of Richmond.

Lieutenant Elyson is a son of H. Theodore Elyson, of Richmond. He has been noted since his entrance into the navy for his attachment to departures from the ordinary. He devoted himself for a time to the study of submarines, until attracted by the field offered in the air. For several months he has been acquainting himself with the profession of air navigation.

During the past few weeks Lieutenant Elyson has been receiving instruction from Glenn Curtiss, one of the pioneer airmen. He is now a full-fledged air pilot, having been duly licensed.

The triad in which the flight from Hammondsport was made is the latest thing in aviation. It is a two-passenger machine, but instead of one occupant, sitting beside the other, they are arranged side by side, and the plane can be controlled by either occupant. The operating device, being shifted at will. The flight referred to was the first made by naval officers on the water and in the air.

Kept Close to Water.
